

CLEARING HOUSE

Here's something pretty good to mull over. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York recently told an audience that there is a difference between "making a noise and being a liberal." The choice lies between active intellectual leadership and ordinary everyday hell-raising. Some people get confused between being liberal or just being ill-mannered. The latter is not difficult at all.

Really For 'Em

"Dear Sir: I am for UK teams all the time even if they never win another game but why is it that in the Kernel reports of a conflict in basketball or football there is always an excuse for Kentucky's defeat. It is the same thing—we would have won if so and so had not been sick or if someone else had not been injured.

Brag About Vandy

The paper even stated or tried to say that Bowser Chest was an inferior official which is just the opposite of the truth because Chest was chosen last year as one of the best officials in the South. The Kernel tries to make the students think UK is the best there is, but look at the ratings this week in the south-eastern conference. Out of the thirteen teams, Kentucky rates twelfth. The only team below the Wildcats is little Sewanee with a student body of 280. Why doesn't the Kernel print this instead of how bad the Wildcats are going to hit Marquette. "You brag about beating Vandy. Well, I wouldn't consider that doing much because David Lipscomb, a junior college in Nashville, beat Vandy 48-30."—J. T.

And Our Side

In answer to the above the Associated Press stated, "Kentucky, after dropping its first two conference games, apparently hit the stride expected of the Blue Grass cagers the past week. Kentucky defeated Vanderbilt handily 51-37."

Alabama, leader of the Conference, last week was defeated by Vandy 36-34. Remember Alabama had won from Kentucky 41-38. It seems that Kentucky may be recovering.

Kentucky is tenth, not twelfth, in the conference and has played fewer conference games than any member team. At the start of the year, an AP poll placed Kentucky as the strongest team in the conference. In other words, why not try to analyze the reasons that the Cat had not lived up to expectations?

About The Same

Two letters were received for this issue—both regarding the recent text-book controversy. We are printing only one, since both say about the same thing. The second letter was signed by three persons whose initials are R. S., R. F., and S. C.

Johnny Applesauce

"Dear Sir: Out of sympathy for Johnny Applesauce, who recently received quite a discouraging setback, I beg allowance to make public my sentiments. Is it not reasonable to expect that little Johnny should get every bit of support when he assumes a little responsibility, learns to think for himself—that is, when he starts growing up? On the other hand, is it reasonable to suppose that so and so's apron strings will keep Johnny on the 'straight and narrow' all his life?"

A Wicked World

"Now, because Harry Hartwick's 'The Foreground of American Fiction,' by some fortunate accident, was found just in the nick of time to team with 'ranked infidelity,' does that mean that Johnny is going to have someone do his thinking for him all of the time?—that is, when he starts growing up? On the other hand, is it reasonable to suppose that so and so's apron strings will keep Johnny on the 'straight and narrow' all his life?"

South To North?

We were asked the other day to see what the students thought about changing the location of the student section at football games from the south to the north side of the stadium. We don't know why except that there would be more room on the north side. If you have an opinion on the subject, give it here.

Sadie Hawkins

Another matter which should bring some response is this proposal of a Sadie Hawkins day on the campus. Jim Caldwell discusses it in his column today. Looks to us like a lot of fun. Of course, there's a chance that some of these self-styled "magnificent men" might suffer fallen ego. Anyway, it can't be done without some evidence of interest, so let's have it.

Pretty Accurate

This Student Opinion Survey, which the Kernel has run from time to time has proved pretty accurate. The American Institute of Public Opinion poll and the student survey agreed within two-tenths of one per cent of each other on the question of Roosevelt's popularity. The Fortune poll, which predicted Roosevelt's reelection with almost perfect accuracy, finds it possible to interview only 4,500 persons with similar scientific methods to find the opinions of 75,000,000 adults.

Clausen is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and is the author of seven religious works. Both will appear on the program of the Religion-In-Life Conference to be held on the campus February 19 to 24.

Richard Crooks Concludes Community Concert Series

Metro Tenor Wins Listeners
With Fine Voice And Friendly Manner

By DON IRVINE

Singing beneath three bunches of ferns miraculously suspended on the rear curtain, Richard Crooks, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera association, gave the fourth recital of the Community Concert series Friday night at the Henry Clay high school auditorium.

Paunchy, untemperamental Mr. Crooks completely won his listeners by the excellence of his singing and the informal friendliness of his demeanor. Splendid selections magnificently rendered were preceded by brief, and often amusing, remarks to the audience.

His voice possessed a unique and genuine beauty which was perfectly handled through employment of faultless technique and control. Modulations of tone and volume were performed with incomparable smoothness, and were always adapted appropriately to the particular passage with which they were applied.

In no song more than the first, the aria from Handel's "Semele," was Mr. Crooks' artistry more effectively displayed. All the stumbling blocks of the selection, its demand for both vigor and gentleness of treatment, its wide disparity in high and low notes, he leaped with graceful skill. The loveliness of the melody and the brilliance of Mr. Crooks' performance completely disarmed any critics who might have lurked in the auditorium.

In a second aria by Handel, taken from "Judas Maccabaeus," the fine timbre of the tenor's voice was inextricably confirmed. A quick, powerful song, requiring great delicacy of phrasing and control, the aria proved that Mr. Crooks did not intend to sacrifice musical quality to volume. He performed the admirable work of achieving both.

The poignant Lament from Cilea's "L'Arlésiana," not a particularly difficult task for a tenor of Mr. Crooks' ability, called as much for expression as for musicianship. Vocally, the rendition left nothing to be desired; it was sung with feeling and beauty. However, Mr. Crooks, whose chief dramatic forte seemed to be the violent manipulation of his eyebrows, missed his chance to establish himself as an actor. The number, although peerlessly sung, was badly hampered.

Four More Speakers Added To 13 Already Secured For Conference

Four more speakers have been added to the thirteen already secured for the Religion-In-Life Conference to be held on the campus of the University under the sponsorship of the YMYW and YW during the week of February 19 to 24.

Rabbi James F. Heller of the Isaac Wise Temple, Cincinnati; Dr. Harold Tribble of the Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville; Ellsworth Smith of the Southern Mountain Workers Conference, Berea; and Dr. Henry H. Sweets, head of the Board of Education for the Southern Presbyterian Church are those added to the list of outstanding leaders who will address the students.

General meetings, teas, seminars, luncheons, Chapel Services, fraternity, sorority, denominational group meetings, forums, and assembly meetings are some of the meetings scheduled for the speakers. Bart Peak, secretary of the YMYW, stated.

The other speakers that will be at the Conference are:

Mrs. Grace Sloan Overton, Ann Arbor, Michigan, authority on sex and marriage; Harry N. Holmes, vice-president of the World Christian Endeavor, New York City; the Rev. Samuel Magbul Masih, Bilaspur, India.

Rev. J. Harry Cotton, pastor of the Broad Street Presbyterian church, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. John Hoadley, head of the Hoadley Quarries, Inc., Bloomington, Indiana; Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D. C.; Rev. Bernard Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist church, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rev. T. B. Cowan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. Harvey C. Brown, head of the Board of Education for the Methodist Episcopal church, South, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Jesse M. Bader, National Director of the Mission, New York City; Rev. George Heaton, pastor of the First Baptist church, Lynchburg, Va.; Dr. D. W. Morehouse, president of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa; and Mrs. Harmon Bro. Chicago, Ill.

A complete program for the Religion-In-Life Conference will be published a week before the conference begins and the students may secure one for the asking.

Elsewhere was printed a message from Acting Governor Keen Johnson asking for the aid of every possible resource to be found in the University. Readers were informed of the organization of "Flying Squadrons" to solicit money and clothing from the fraternities and sororities on the campus.

Those were anxious days for the students of the University of Kentucky. Likewise arousing local anxiety, but on a much smaller scale, has been the news from the areas in the grip of the present flood.

Latest dispatches give word that the Kentucky river has begun to fall, and that flood waters inundating cities along its banks are already receding. A student in the Engineering College left yesterday morning for Beattyville, hardest hit of any town in the state, to aid in clearing the houses of his home town of flood debris.

Other students attempting to get through to Richmond were forced to turn back by waters which natives said were the highest in 49 years.

Those returning from Danville reported Chenault Bridge over Herington Lake barely above water.

Although news of Kentucky river waters is definitely reassuring, the Ohio and Cumberland Rivers are reported to be rising. However, barring further rains, waters from these streams are not likely to bring any immediate danger and are not expected to approach anywhere near the stages they attained in 1937.

The Ohio is reported as falling at Pittsburgh, which means that the great bulk of the water has begun to move downstream toward Cincinnati and Louisville. Portsmouth, Ohio, among the most vulnerable of the cities on the lower part of the river, reported a height of eight feet above flood stage. Flood walls in that city are able to repel waters up to a 62 foot level, a height not expected to be reached unless rains continue.

The Board of Trustees also set aside funds for the work on annotation of Kentucky laws under the direction of the law school and for modernization of the radio studios. Two scholarships will be given to European students to study at the University from money made available by the trust, it was announced.

The awards will be made at the April meeting of the Board to be effective with the beginning of the 1939-40 school term in September.

Income from the trust has been estimated from between $25,000 and $30,000 annually. The committee reported that it is hoped that in time an accumulation of funds from the trust might make possible the erection of a building.

Remember This Scene From '37 Flood?

Rivers Repeat '37 Rampage As New Flood Scare Looms

Two Years, Two Weeks Ago Kernel Printed Extra Flood Issue

Recalling the well remembered inundation of two years ago, floods again take over the headlines in Kentucky's newspapers. With each new edition filled with information of river levels, evacuations, and rainfall reports, the situation appears to be another case of history repeating itself.

It was exactly two years and two weeks ago today that the Kernel published an extra edition for the information of students whose homes were in the flooded areas. Prominently displayed in that issue was a message from President McVey urging all students with homes and families in the stricken sections to remain on the campus, since any attempt to go into these areas would only add to the burden of relief workers.

An open competitive examination for 20 junior professional positions in the United States Department of Agriculture will be offered for the first time by the United States Civil Service Commission during the first part of March, according to an announcement received yesterday from the offices of Assistant Dean L. J. Horlacher of the College of Agriculture.

Graduating seniors who pass the examinations will have opportunity to qualify for the appointment soon after July 1. Professor Horlacher said.

Roy F. Hendrickson, director of personnel for the United States Department of Agriculture, has notified officials of the college that more than 1,100 junior scientists will be needed this year because of the enlarged research program. The positions pay a starting salary of $2,000 a year.

Students may obtain the announcement and application blank at the nearest post office named in the examination announcement, or by writing the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Students are requested to ask for Announcement No. 18 and application No. 8. Applications must be on file with the Commission's office at Washington, not later than February 27. Applicants who meet the entrance requirements will be notified of the examination place and date.

A short general test will be followed by an examination on any one of the following junior grades—agronomist, bacteriologist, biologist, botanist, dairy husbandman, economist, engineer, entomologist, geologist, home economist, plant pathologist, soil scientist, statistician, textile technologist, physiologist, and veterinarian.

Successful candidates will be selected on the basis of the general examinations plus the records of completed college courses.

Mr. Hendrickson also told Professor Horlacher that consolidated examinations are planned for March of each year so that members of each graduating class will have an opportunity to be considered for employment in the Department during the summer following graduation.

KERNEL STAFF TO MEET

Students who wish to try out for reporting, feature writing, and positions on the copy desk meet with the regular staff at 3 p. m. today in the Kernel newsroom, sub-basement of McVey Hall.

Marquette Victory Throws Wildcats Into Top Bracket For Next Tilt With Xavier

MID-YEAR TERM RE-ENROLLMENT REACHES 3,320

'38-'39 Figures

REGISTRATION OPEN UNTIL NEXT MONDAY

Authorities Believe Present
Enrollment Will Equal
'37-'38 Semester

Registration figures soared to 3,320 at the close of the day's enrollment yesterday. It was learned last night from Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University registrar.

Enrollment officials believe that there is a possibility that the final registration may reach 3,484, the total at the close of registration for the second semester last year.

Students may register throughout this week and final registration will close on Monday, February 13. It was announced yesterday from the registrar's office.

Although the present enrollment is 42 below the enrollment at the same time last year, it is increasing more rapidly than last year's late registration. At the close of registration on Thursday, February 2, registration officials reported 3,185 enrollees which had increased 135 at the final report last night.

Since the school year of 1934-35 each year's enrollment has been gradually increasing. The depression proved a serious handicap to the University when the final figures dropped 800 in 1932.

In the past, second semester enrollment has fallen approximately 150 short of the first semester enrollment. Extra time for registration will be given those persons taking independent work.

Out-of-state enrollment was led by New York during the first semester of this year with a total of 116 students. Fayette county has the largest enrollment in the University of any of the 120 counties in the state. Forty-three of the forty-eight states and two foreign countries were represented in the first semester's final registration figures.

ROTC Graduates Eligible For Army

Lieut.-Col. Howard Donnelly, R. O. T. C. commandant at the University, announced that he had recently received information that, under a newly passed act of Congress, all cadets who graduated from the University last week or will be graduated this June are eligible for one year of active duty with a regular Army unit at one of the nearby Army posts.

The purpose of the act is to train officers who have just been graduated or who will be commissioned prior to July 1, 1939. These reserve officers will receive full pay and allowances during the year they are on active duty.

Students may obtain the announcement and application blank at the nearest post office named in the examination announcement, or by writing the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Students are requested to ask for Announcement No. 18 and application No. 8. Applications must be on file with the Commission's office at Washington, not later than February 27. Applicants who meet the entrance requirements will be notified of the examination place and date.

Blues Are Ready For Muskies At 12th Start Of Season Wednesday In Cincy

With their basketball stock hitting a new high as a result of the 37-31 win Saturday night over Marquette, the Kentucky Wildcats will face the veteran Xavier University Musketeers in their 12th assignment of the year Wednesday night in Cincinnati.

By rolling over Vanderbilt and Marquette in their last two tests, after dropping successive games to Notre Dame, Tennessee and Alabama, the Cats served notice that they are at last on the road to recovery. The Marquette game found the Blues clicking in their best form of the season and, withstanding another let-down, will probably take the floor favored to claw the Muskies by a slight margin.

Although little is known regarding Xavier's power, the starting five, Carroll, Neary, Geselbracht, Donovan and Howe, is the same combination that split in two games with Kentucky last year. Up to last Friday, when the University of Indiana carried off a 48-39 win, Xavier had swept to five straight wins. Donovan ripped the net for 20 points against the Hoosiers to take top honors in the scoring derby.

On comparative scores Kentucky holds a huge point advantage. Washington and Lee marched through the Musketeers by a 10 point margin while Kentucky mutilated the Generals, 67-47. Last season the Muskies scored a 39-32 win over the Wildcats in Cincinnati for the first triumph a Xavier team had ever scored over Kentucky in an athletic contest. In that game Carroll led the scorers with 12 points and was the spear-head of the Xavier attack.

In a return game in Alumni gym that was as dull and colorless as Xavier's black jerseys, Kentucky scored an easy 45-23 win that found substitutes playing most of the game. Mickey Rouse was given the assignment of guarding Carroll and covered him like cake icing and yielded the high scoring Muskie forward but one field goal and three foul shots. The Cats will further be out to avenge a 26-6 licking handed the Kentucky football team by Xavier this fall. As in football, Xavier's success for the basketball season hinges on the outcome of the Kentucky game.

Coach Adolph Rupp is expected to bestow starting blessings on the five that clicked so well in the Marquette meeting. That lineup would include Farnley and Curtis at the forwards, Clugish at center and Captain Opper and Rouse at the guard posts. Yesterday the Cats were sent through their usual practice paces and today's menu called for a light rehearsal.

Following Wednesday night's battle, Kentucky will open preparations to stem Alabama's Crimson Tide in Alumni gym Saturday night in a Southeastern Conference meeting. The following Monday night the Cats will make another home start against Mississippi State in Kentucky's fifth game against league opposition. Tennessee will be played February 18 in Knoxville; Xavier will be met February 21 in return bout here and a home start against Vanderbilt February 25 will shut the year's schedule book.

Speakers for the regular meetings include Dr. R. H. Crossfield, president of Transylvania College; Rabbi Milton L. Grafman, Mrs. E. Z. Palmer, and Bruce Price.

The class is open to everyone interested in world affairs and persons wishing to join may do so by sending name and address to Mrs. Frank L. McVey, it was announced.

Too Bad — We Have Rats!

Hey, you rat!

And that's not half strong enough, fellow, if you're one of those that persist in ruining the campus.

Let's go into the history of the thing. Remember way back last semester when a half-conjoling, half-pleading editorial was written asking for a little cooperation in this matter of keeping the grass growing? And then do you remember that one that did a little fine preaching? And the ones that tried to kid you out of it by offering prizes for crazy slogans?

Of course you don't remember. It's fairly evident now that all of that pleading, preaching, and kidding fell on deaf ears.

Well, it has finally dawned on us that the only way to talk to rats is to use rat language. Unfortunately, journalistic ethics don't permit the worst rat talk to be printed. But you can use your imagination for all its worth and the worst things you can think are just about what we mean when we call you a rat.

Right now, the bare places on the campus have been seeded, the ground is soft, the grass can be killed without much trouble, and if you fail to use the walks, you are not only the worst kind of a rat—you're mulish, pig-headed, slovenly, onerous, obnoxious, and one helluva citizen.

Want to make something of it?

A Course In Marriage— Not For Sensation Seekers

Even the dullest of the dull probably realize that there has been during the past year a concerted effort on the part of major organizations throughout the nation to educate the public to the dangers, treatment, and cure of venereal diseases. This has been only one part of a new "health-consciousness" which has embraced tuberculosis, cancer, infantile paralysis, and sex and marriage problems.

On this campus, however, venereal diseases have been stressed, and this year, education on tuberculosis will be added to the program. Supposedly, national Social Hygiene Day on February 1 was to be the focal point of these diversified programs. But unfortunately, at the University no observance was held because of registration which came on that date.

General Hygiene Problems—

Frequently have we stressed the need for organization programs on the innumerable aspects of venereal diseases and on general hygiene problems, and one of the most important headings in this list concerns marriage courses.

Beginning in 1927 at the University of North Carolina, the movement for marriage courses in colleges and universities has spread until now it embraces over 225 such institutions in the United States. Vassar, Columbia, and Iowa each have one.

The Course In Marriage—

These courses are not merely over-grown bull-sessions, nor are the students seeking sensational lectures. The question of morals is not emphasized. Assignments are made and considerable outside reading is done. The courses include practical subjects, often suggested by the students themselves, taught by experienced teachers who make this their special field. Among the points discussed are courtship, choice of a mate, engagement, finances, marital and domestic adjustments, and birth control.

At North Carolina, at least, the attitude of parents has been completely favorable, according to a report by the Pittsburgh paper, The Carnegie Tartan. "No doubt remains as to the success of the course, if the word of alumni is used as evidence. One former student, expressing the view of many others, said that not only did the course make his marriage happier, but it gave him an important insight into life and its problems in general."

Touching Life Itself—

Here at the University of Kentucky, in addition to the professional schools like Agriculture, Commerce, Education, Engineering, and Law, we have courses for the preparation of students in Nursing, Social Work, Medical Technology, Teaching, Pre-Medical preparation, Library Science, Secretarial Practice—all of which is evidence that we are keeping "abreast of the times." Certainly marriage involves more persons than any one of these vocational studies. A course in marriage could not be defined as a vocational study, nor as a strictly educational study. It embraces both—it is a basis for life itself.

Why Not Here?

Practical difficulties in installing such a course have presented themselves elsewhere, and would probably turn up here as well. Subject matter must be selected; the credit to be given must be determined; schedules must be arranged; limits on who may take the course must be set; but such difficulties have not proved insurmountable elsewhere, and there is no reason why they should prove so here. Effort must be expended, but certainly the necessity and the desire for such a course justify it.

Behind The Eckdahl

By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

EXCLUSIVE! Comes word from the icy wastes of New Britain, Connecticut, that former Football-Captain Stan Nevers (he's Henry Nevers' brother, you know) is veddy busy—organizing a Boy Scout troop.

Miss Helen Friedman, who wears red finger-nail polish and doesn't like bow ties, wrote a poem. She graciously consented to let us print it, but we lost it. Of course, we really didn't lose it, we more of misplaced it. Anyway, after the tumult and the shouting died from final exams we managed to locate it. So, we offer you Miss Helen Friedman's latest contribution to the world of verse:

The clock ticks on.
In the distance a radio's insistent voice
Plays a swing song—
My unread book tells me I have no choice.
Is it so wrong to dream of future life?

Life is an unread book
Unfolding day on day
If only we dared to look
—Gee—can't Lombardo play?

(Mathematics Division)

Q. In your column of January 25 you said that half as cold as 38 degrees above zero was 19 above zero, both temperatures on the Fahrenheit thermometer. Will you please check this again and say if it is correct?

A. Rechecking these figures reveals that a slight error was made in the answer. Half as cold as 38 degrees above zero, instead of being 19 degrees above, really is 211 degrees below zero. This answer was obtained by using the discovery that zero, instead of being the mark on the Fahrenheit thermometer, which reads zero, is really 459 degrees further down the scale. This is called the absolute zero and is the one which scientific and technical readers of this column insist on using in all problems relating to the weather. So it can be figured out that the mark shown on a Fahrenheit thermometer as 38 degrees above zero really is 497 degrees above zero. That is actually the temperature and half of that is 248.5 degrees. But that 38 degrees with which we started will have to come off of that, so the answer is 211 degrees below the Fahrenheit zero. It seems singular, but the correctors say it is true—absolutely speaking.

While we were sitting in the typing room bating out the above item, some chap came rushing in and said as follows:

"I hear you are unusual."

"How's that?" We asked, looking up.

"Just heard over in the Union that you had the characteristics of a genius and a half-wit," he answered, rushing out again.

The whole thing is pretty baffling. We pass it on to you, hoping you can make something out of it, we can't.

After seeing the movie version of Robert Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight" we understand the title.

In the caption of a picture appearing recently in the Leader we saw that a member of the Lexington police force was a "burley, Grade-A patrolman." A good tobacco man, no doubt.

This is just a rumor, and we print it only as such, taking no responsibility for the truth of the matter.

But we hear that Mr. Pete Smith put 75 cents into the Campus Book store's new soft-drink vending machine trying to hit the jackpot.

Shades Of Sadie Hawkins!

CAMPUSCENE

- Why Not A Sadie Hawkins
- Day At UK? After
- All, It Started In Dogpatch!

By JIM CALDWELL

The other day we happened to be looking through a copy of the current LIFE, when we happened across several pages of pictures of a recent event held at the University of Wyoming known as Sadie Hawkins day. This immediately caused us to recall having read of similar happenings at the University of Tennessee and McGill University in Montreal, and we wondered why it happened that this screwball antic was beginning to be held in many of the states of the U. S. and Canada—except the very state wherein it was "supposed" to have originated. We figure it is just another case of a famous person being recognized in every place except his own town. But it is strange that some patriotic soul hasn't stood up at some time or other and advocated paying tribute to the world-famed "Kentucky hill-billies."

L'I Abner's Stomping Ground

In case you're not up at present on your funny-pat persuing, we shall endeavor to make plain just what we're driving at. The comic strip, "L'I Abner," has as its setting the feud-marked town of Dogpatch, Ky. In that town there once lived a very homely gal named Sadie Hawkins, who was a 1 to 2 shot for spinsterhood. But her good puppy loved her in spite of her very obvious faults, and he decided to get her a husband. So he lined up all the community's eligible bachelors, started them running, and loosed daughter Sadie on their trail. The one she caught had to marry her. Now Sadie, though foul of face, was fleet of foot, and she got her man. Ever since then an annual event has been held in Dogpatch to enable un-beautiful females to track down husbands. L'I Abner, himself, by keeping in training, has thus far escaped.

Using this yarn as a basis, some enterprising individual at, we believe, Tennessee, created the brilliant idea of having a Sadie Hawkins Day, with the objective, however, being a dance rather than a wedding ceremony. The idea was followed through; it clicked, and was immediately repeated at other universities. Now, so LIFE claims, it has practically assumed all the aspects of a national holiday.

How It Works

The jist of the whole thing, in its present form, is a dance with the women changing places with the boys for one night. It is a rather large scale Leap Year Dance, with the girls paying the boys' way, sending them boutonnieres, buying the drinks, and doing all the breaking. The only difference is that the girls have to catch their dates instead of merely asking them to go with them. When a pursuer has succeeded in "running down" a date, she pins her name to his coat, and no other female can claim him. Just as a popular girl is supposed to be complimented by a great number of boys asking to take her to a dance, so is popularity of a male to be judged by the number of women trying to run him down. Wonder how a big, brawny athlete would feel if he turned out to be a "mub" at a Sadie-style dance?

We don't know whether the Kentuckian's temperament would allow him to take to the idea or not. It does seem worth trying, however, for it is rather a shame for the idea to be snubbed in the very state from whence it is supposed to have come. It appears to us that there would be everything to gain and nothing to lose by trying it, for look at the fine publicity Kentucky would get if it came to be known that Kentuckians were actually practicing what they preached. And then there is always the chance that it might click, and be tried again next year and eventually develop into a tradition—and every-one knows how badly we need traditions on this campus. If it should flop—so what? Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

What Do You Think?

If you are all impressed—one way or the other—by the idea, be sure to write and let us know. If enough people are in favor of A Sadie Hawkins Day, there is a chance that one may be held. And if it is, there is always the chance that it will work. Who knows?

New Faculty Club Boasts Multi- Colored Interior

By VINCENT CROWDUS

Just a dusky, weather discolored exterior, but a gayly, multi-colored interior—that describes the new University Faculty Club home at historic Patterson residence.

The interior color scheme, suggested by Professor Edward W. Rannells, head of the art department, and carried out with some modifications, features two or more different shades or tints in a single room. According to Professor Rannells, the vari-colored scheme is being used extensively elsewhere, but seems to be unfamiliar here. He explains that such decoration creates a more effective color of light and, consequently, a more pleasant atmosphere.

Color of light depends upon two factors, the color transmitted thru a window, or other aperture, and the color reflected from the wall surface. Therefore, the use of some light color against an opposite, darker one, imparts a more uniform color within the room and the desired pleasant atmosphere.

The color scheme for the Faculty Club residence is: Stairs hall—pale tints of yellow-brown, pink-brown, and neutral brown.

Drawing room—pale tints of yellow-brown, neutral brown, and mustard yellow-green.

Downstairs passageway—combination of shades and tints; turquoise and pale lemon-yellow tint.

Dinning Room—shade darker than passageway; tints of neutral brown, turquoise, and lemon-yellow.

Library—warm violet gray and mulberry (neutral cerise).

Card room—pale blue-green, neutral blue-green, and coral red.

Ping pong room—mulberry, tur-

Collegiates Of Nation In Accord With FDR, But No Third Term

Student Opinion Surveys Reveal 62.5 Percent
Backing President, With 28.2
For Another Four Years

By Student Opinion Surveys of America

AUSTIN, Texas, February 7—The world is witnessing a perplexing situation in American politics: a president going into the last half of his second term, with strong opposition to his startling policies—but still with the confidence of the majority of the people.

The youth of the nation now acquiring a higher education, the leaders of the country of tomorrow, are in accord with the rest of the citizenry, and are even more enthusiastic, in the support of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In a sampling referendum conducted for the Kentucky Kernel, and 80 other cooperating college newspapers, the Student Opinion Surveys of America show that 62.5 per cent of the students "generally approve of Roosevelt today as president." The survey included students of all shades of political affiliation.

Oppose Third Term

This figure, however, does not mean that they would like to see him run for a third term, for only 28.2 per cent answer yes to that question. The most significant deduction of the results of this poll is that, although the students like the president, they don't want him to be a candidate again.

The surveys, recently organized for sounding out campus opinion, have conducted two balloting on Roosevelt, so it is possible to determine his trend of popularity in the colleges.

Dec. Jan.

Approve of Roosevelt 62.8 62.5

Favor Third Term 27.2% 28.2%

F. D. R.'s increase in popularity during the month may be attributed to events focusing attention on foreign affairs and national defense. Condemnation of Nazi treatment of Jews, the Lima Conference, trade treaties with Great Britain, and rearmament are policies generally approved by the public.

Students Show Greater Preference

It is of interest to compare the nation's student vote of 65.5 per cent for Roosevelt with the January figure released by the American Institute of Public Opinion, showing 58 per cent of all voters approving. Although students are more emphatic on this count, they tend to agree more closely on third-term sentiment. The Survey shows 28.2 per cent favoring; the Institute shows 30 per cent.

The President's popularity, by sections, runs in this order, from highest to lowest: South, Far West, West Central, East Central, Middle Atlantic, and New England.

UK Library May Boast Collection Of 18,000 Cards

The University library has a collection of post cards that ranks with the best university collections in the country. This collection, which is growing at the average rate of 200 a month, contains more than 18,000 postcards.

At present, not only every state in the union is represented but 67 foreign countries as well. Some of these foreign nations have contributed so many cards that several filing drawers are required to hold them.

Kentucky is well represented, filling one complete drawer, as does Lexington and its surrounding Bluegrass area. Part of the collection deals with a specific subject, rather than a certain area, as is the case with the large collection of famous lighthouses from all over the world.

Miss Margaret Tuttle, who has charge of the cards, said that she would welcome any contributions, no matter how few, to add to her files. By far the large majority of the cards have been contributed by faculty and students, often from their own private collections.

These cards are always at the disposal of any of the faculty or students. They can be of great help in illustrating geographical or travel talks, or may merely be inspected for personal enjoyment. Anyone wishing to use this collection should see Miss Tuttle in the Library offices.

What Becomes Of Mortar Board Members?

What becomes of Mortar Board members after college? Do the girls who attain this senior honorary by having an average college standing of 2 continue to display the intellectual qualities that have characterized their activities in school?

A recent survey of this subject, covering a period of five years, shows that all the Mortar Board members located are now engaged in active work of some type. Occupations in which they are now engaged vary from that of the housewife to that of the business world. Some of the more unique jobs listed are the Stage magazine, Dean of Mary Baldwin College, Hostess of Columbia Broadcasting, and staff of the Dean of Women at the University of North Carolina.

Girls of this type are more attracted to educational work than any other field, according to statistics. Of those working 58 percent are employed either as teachers or in connection with some school or college.

The next highest group are those enjoying matrimonial bliss. Twenty-one of the total number or 41 percent are now married. Eight percent of these are holding jobs in addition to their domestic responsibilities.

That success in college and business does not greatly depend on the IQ of the individual is shown by the intelligence rating of these girls. Only one-fourth of the number are rated in the first decile in intelligence. Eight percent are rated below the fifth decile and one is placed as low as the ninth. We conclude from this that there is hope for everyone.

Cats Point Toward Xavier For Another Win

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

Paraphrasing Tennyson's "Sir Galahad" to complete a picture of the Kentucky-Marquette basketball game Saturday night—"There was the strength of ten for their hearts were pure."

On second thought perhaps that's putting it a little strong, but Kentucky did put the fervor of holy crusade into their playing and performed like a gang inspired in winning from the Milwaukee Hilltoppers 37-31.

About two months ago I ventured the prediction that this year's crop of Wildcats would develop into one of the best teams in Kentucky net history. But up to Saturday night there was a rather prevalent idea that my selection did not come from any inside dope—just from a hope. So what does Kentucky do but go out and prove that my assertion is not altogether foolishness.

Faced with the necessity of showing some class against a strong team, not only to restore the confidence of the cash customers but their own confidence as well, the Cats were prepared to, and did, shoot the works. From the opening to the final whistle it was obvious that a resurrected team was on the floor for Kentucky and the Blues went for Marquette like men with parched throats go for ice water. A strong point to remember for future reference is that Long Island University, the only team to soundly trounce Kentucky, had what Manhattan sports writers phased "amazing accuracy on long shots" in nipping Marquette 41-34. You of course might remember that the Hilltoppers practically annihilated Wisconsin and Northwestern in recent meetings.

Cats Out For Blood

There was not the slightest element of luck entering into Kentucky's win. After they had worked three perfect set plays in the first seven minutes Marquette found trying to out maneuver Kentucky's determined defense as futile as running chin out into Joe Louis' fist and expecting the fist to break. While they were allowed many shots, most of them were so hurried and taken with the man so far off balance as to be almost hopeless. On the other hand the Cats were a constant offensive menace. First they would draw the gold-trimmed "Toppers out into the floor to halt their long shots and then suck the giant Marquette guards back under the basket to check their deadly block plays.

Marquette came to town after looking forward to avenging the 35-33 defeat charged to their account last season on a shot by Joe Hagan in the closing 15 seconds of the game. But they got less for their great plans than a defeated politician. Their offense was as intricate and tricky as Einstein's theory but they were simply unable to fox the Kentucky guards out of position. Relying on their superior size and speed, Marquette attempted most of their plays from far out in the floor and on either side of the court, thus leaving a yawning cavity down the middle for their speedy forwards. But every time they would try one of their plays they found one or two Kentucky men standing guard.

Both Weak On Fouls

During the first half Kentucky played as near perfect ball as any coach could pray for and were especially strong on covering shots off both goals. In this period Kentucky made 8 field goals, Marquette 7. Kentucky cashed in on 6 fouls shots in 7 tries, Marquette made 2 out of 7. The Wildcats held an advantage for the entire game of 15 to 13 in field goals and 7 successful foul shots in 13 tries to 6 out of 11 for Marquette.

Trying to pick Kentucky's hero would be as impossible as looking out over the Atlantic Ocean and selecting the best wave. Undoubtedly the man showing the greatest awakening was Captain Bernie Opper, who flashed the form that made him an All-Conference pick last year. The fair haired boy could easily have been Mickey Rouse, who lead the Cat point makers; then it could have been Keith Farnsley, who started the scoring ball to rolling with three rapid field goals; the honor could go to Marion Cluggish, who played the vital pivot position without substitution; or the honor could be handed to Cab Curtis, Lee Huber or Jim Goodman, who were vital links in the chain that bound the powerful Hilltoppers.

Game Hard But Clean

It has long been a fore-drawn conclusion that sport is not sport unless it is a contest. To be a contest you must pit either two poor or two bad teams. These affairs between a good and a bad team just don't tell, run-ins such as David and Goliath's clash happen but once in the Bible. Today approximately 4,500 fans are willing to couch that Kentucky and Marquette presented a contest that was sport in its highest meaning. Although exceptionally fast and hard, the play was clean and but 20 fouls, 10 on each team, were called during the game.

The convincing win boosted Kentucky's national prestige back toward the top as sharply as the curves on a pneumonia fever chart. Although pessimism at the present time is as much out of place as an Inverness cape and opera hat at a clam bake, the next two weeks will find Kentucky facing five tough teams, Alabama, Mississippi State, Xavier, Vanderbilt and Tennessee, and then the grand finale—the conference tournament. Saturday night's game proved that the team has plenty more on the ball than the cover, but these remaining games will be their trial by fire.

SPRING DRILLS ARE POSTPONED

Weather Conditions Prevent Football Practice On Stoll Field

Due to adverse weather conditions, the opening of spring football practice was temporarily postponed yesterday by Head Coach Ab Kirwan and the checking out of practice equipment held the stage.

The melting of snow and yesterday's rain caused the coaches to call off the opening drill. In case the weather clears today the initial outdoor session will be held with a total of 60 candidates expected to be ready to answer the opening bell. From last year's varsity squad a total of 35 men, including 22 lettermen, are expected to report to Coach Kirwan and his staff members Bernie Shively, Joe Ruppert, Gene Myers and Frank Moseley. The freshman squad is expected to add 25 hopefuls into the competition for varsity team berths. With the help of the weatherman spring drills are due to continue for six weeks. The first week will be given to conditioning exercises with contact work on tap for the second week.

The brunt of the coaching chores will fall to coaches Kirwan, Shively, and Myers since Ruppert will soon be called to take up his track instructing duties and Moseley's time is currently taken by the boxing team. The spring drills will bring to a conclusion a busy season on the banquet circuit during which time they filled numerous speaking dates at high schools all over the state.

The opening of drills will officially move Coach Kirwan into his second season as head Wildcat coach. When Chet Wynne yielded to internal pressure and criticism and tendered his resignation and was replaced by Bernie Shively as Kentucky's Athletic Director last February 22, Mr. Shively's first act was to name Kirwan, a former Cat player, to the head grid duties. Kirwan in turn selected an all-Kentucky staff as his aids. While Shively and Moseley are former Illinois and Alabama players, both hold degrees from Kentucky. Ruppert and Myers are former Wildcat greats.

Guignol Will Make Permanent Exhibit Of Miniature Sets

Model sets constructed by 11 students in the beginning dramatic production class of the Guignol Theatre will be used to start a permanent exhibit, Frank Fowler, director, announced yesterday.

The model set of the first act of "Idiot's Delight" submitted by Frederick E. Hofmann is the best ever made in the Guignol Theatre, asserted Professor Fowler. It is the cocktail lounge of the Hotel Monte Gabriele, drawn to the scale of one-half inch.

The curtain, the footlight trough, the faces on the side of the stage are all drawn to exact scale and present a life-like miniature of the Guignol stage. The furniture, windows, doors, tables, and chairs fit snugly into the set and blend harmoniously with the surroundings.

Other exceptional amateur sets submitted and accepted for the permanent exhibit are: Marguerite Goodykointz's set of the "Tempest," Joe Rogers' set of "Stage Door," Dorothy Cummins' set of "First Lady," Ruth Levy's set of "The Circle," Roger Thornton's set of "The Rivals," and Robert Sullivan's set of "Importance of Being Earnest."

Phillip Phillips and Elwood Chambers made the same set, "When Ladies Meet" and the two were combined to make one model for the permanent exhibit. Other sets in the exhibit are Allene DeMent's set of "Death Takes A Holiday," and Ellsworth Bellinger's set of "Macbeth." Approximately 50 sets were made by the members of the class.

RICHARD CROOKS

That the artist's voice had successfully convinced its auditors of its beautiful quality and flawless handling was demonstrated in the listeners' reaction. The greedy crowd extracted eleven encores from the accommodating and gracious Mr. Crooks. Singing with the same excellence that he had sustained throughout the diversified program, Mr. Crooks included in his dessert menu Schubert's "Serenade," the familiar "Songs My Mother Taught Me," the Dream aria from Massenet's "Manon," and a superb aria from Lalo's little-known opera, "Le Roi D'Ys."

Preceding the concert, Prof. R. D. McIntyre, president of the Community Concert association, announced the artists for next year's series. They are: the Gordon String Quartet, pianist Simon Barer, violinist Robert Viroval, opera star Lotte Lehmann, and famed baritone Lawrence Tibbett.

Well, What About It?
We still haven't received any statements regarding the practice of wearing freshman caps. Some say it is making a "mountain out of a mole hill" but we still say that traditions which are worthless should be abolished or encouraged to become a vital part of school spirit. Personally, we would like to see this tradition encouraged. Make the letters short as possible. . . . # Wildcats Whip Marquette As Blue Offense Tactics Score Up 37-31 Triumph

Inspired Kentucky Quintette Snaps Out Of Slump For Hilltoppers

Working a vacuum tight defense behind an offense that was as tireless and relentless as Ol' Man River, the Kentucky Wildcats bounced back into the national basketball spotlight with a 37-31 win over the Marquette Hilltoppers Saturday night in Alumni Gym.

It was an inspired Kentucky team that recoiled from the lethargy of looseness that had hounded their play in dropping three of their preceding four games. After the opening two minutes of play, when Marquette led by 4-2, Kentucky forged into a lead that was never lost. The win was the seventh triumph in 11 games for Kentucky while the loss was Marquette's fourth in 13 engagements.

Rated as one of the Midwest's most powerful teams and boasting wins over such powerhouses as Northwestern, 18 point winner over Notre Dame, and Wisconsin, Marquette demonstrated to the 4,500 customers one of the nearest passing attacks ever seen in the Alumni band-box. But the scratching Cats, who watched their men like Sing Sing prison guards, gave the rangy Hilltoppers few open shots at the basket. From start to finish the game provided as many thrills and chills as last year's meeting of the two teams, won by Kentucky 35-33 on a melodramatic field goal in the final 15 seconds by Joe Hagan.

The game marked the return to form of Kentucky's Captain Bernie Opper. An all-conference guard last season, Opper had, up to Saturday night, utterly failed to demonstrate his true class. But against Marquette Opper played one of the finest games in his career, especially in taking rebounds off the Marquette goal. Mickey Rouse led the Wildcats scorers with 10 points and turned in a great defensive game at guard. One of the most improved demonstrations was made by Marion Cluggish, who played the entire 40 minutes. Although off his usual scoring form, Cab Curtis turned in his best defensive chores of the year. The other forward post was capably handled by Keith Farnsley and Jim Goodman.

Deneen Marquette Ace Marquette's attack was hinged around Bobby Deneen, who led the scorers with 11 points. Co-captain Irwin Graf was next high with 9. As a team, the Hilltoppers were one

Basketball entries must be handed in to the intramural office in the basement of Alumni gym before 6:00 this afternoon. A record number of teams are expected to enter into this year's cage eliminations which will be contested in three leagues. The opening round games will start February 14 in the Gym annex.

"Practical Court Martials" is the subject of group school and banquet of the Lexington district of the Reserve Officers Corps to be held at 6:30 p. m., February 8, in the Union. The program will be supervised by Capt. Anthony Thomson.

Rouse, Cluggish Tie For Scoring Honor

By ringing up 10 points Saturday night against Marquette, Layton (Mickey) Rouse, junior guard, moved into a tie for second place in the race for Kentucky individual scoring honors.

Rouse's total of 70 points placed him in a dead-lock with center slump, Cab Curtis added 5 points to boost his team leading total to 104. Individual scoring:

Curtis	104
Rouse	70
Cluggish	70
Farnsley	61
Thompson	59
Opper	38
Huber	32
Goodman	32
